BIO

Michelle Johnson is a contemporary jazz-influenced singer-songwriter based in Las Vegas, Nevada, where she is known as "The First Lady of Jazz." She is also a sought after event producer and musician contractor who has placed singers and musicians on national television specials, award shows, headliner concerts, corporate events and more. Michelle is the go to person in Las Vegas for world class talent and efficient, complex production work.

After years of singing backups for many musical legends, she is currently recording her first solo album and working on a book about the music business. Michelle is an international vocalist whose versatility, affinity for languages, unique voice and impressive range have made her a hot commodity in the music business. She grew up primarily in Cairo, Egypt and then attended and graduated from Yale University. Her original path to Harvard Law School diverged onto a different route when her passion for the entertainment industry eventually won out. She has performed on Broadway and shared a stage with or recorded with several artists including Paul McCartney, Barbara Streisand, Elton John, Slash, Paul Rogers, Rosanne Cash, Neal Schon (of Journey) and PM Dawn.
